

Mission:

Fuck Cancer is a 501 (c)3 nonprofit in the US and registered Canadian charity focusing on prevention, early detection, and supporting those affected by cancer. With wit, edge and humor, we are improving health outcomes through health education, community programs and events.

Current Programs:

NOT US We reduce HPV-associated cancers by increasing HPV vaccinations & screening. We work with community clinics to bolster vaccinations and screening efforts, while educating high school students about to the HPV vaccine.

Take Charge We teamed up with the Oncofertility Consortium to raise awareness while supporting fertility preservation for cancer patients. Our goal is to empower individuals to Take Charge of their fertility.

Keep Joy Alive We teamed up with the Institute for Family Health in Harlem, NY to educate and increase screening rates for colorectal cancer. Our focus is particularly on high risk populations, such as African Americans and Latinos, aged 45 and over. Our goal is to reduce late stage diagnosis of colorectal cancer in these populations.

Psychosocial We directly provide emotional support through on the ground programs through the Pink Pearl Retreat supporting woman affected with cancer & Kids Konnected helping children & teens with parents affected by cancer.

Education Our resources and campaigns have taught millions of online community members how to look for cancer rather than just finding it. Equipping them with tools to help them navigate the cancer experience as a patient, caregiver or loved one.

Events:

We throw parties all over the world that give our community a unique bonding experience & help fund the overall mission of Fuck Cancer.

Community:

The heart & soul of our organization and the reason behind our emotional support resources. This is a group of people defined by their shared behavior, not their birthdate. They consume and communicate with digital content and each other online as their main source of information and support.
